surroundings

The water element is characteristic of Maassluis. The town originated around 1340 and was only a settlement with a lock that offered protection against flooding. Later it grew into the charming fishing village as we know it. The charming and beautiful old town is a lovely place to be. The lively harbor, the many terraces, the modern shopping facilities, the magnificent public library, museums and theater Schuurkerk make living in Maassluis so special. Remember the New Waterway, where you sail with a ferry to Rozenburg. Here the human determines the rhythm of everyday life.
